OREGON LEGISLATURE

Fourth Regular Session.

Senate.

SALEM, MONDAY, Oct 8 1866

Prayer by Rev Mr Williams

REPORTS FROM STANDING COMMITTEES.

Mr BAILEY from the Committee on Corporations to whom was referred S B No 12—to amend the act relative to foreign insurance companies &c—with amendments to the same reported progress to enable Banks and Banking Associations to deposit $50 000 in the treasury of the county where doing business

Mr PALMER thought banking institutions ought not to be included that it was for the interest of the State to encourage them because their introduction here had a tendency to break up monopolies and reduce the rates of interest He knew it known that the establishment of the Bank of British Columbia at Portland had reduced the rate of interest from 1½ and 2 per cent per month to 1 per cent The greater the amount of money in circulation the less the rates of interest and the better for the country Banks should be exempt from the regulations and deposit bonds as an encouragement for them to put it into circulation in the State

Mr JOHNSON thought that the banks as well as express companies should be required to make the deposit forthwith as it will come after the case of Adams & Co In the future, of whom a great many people having deposits with them were absolutely robbed It would be an easy matter for the Company for instance to sell out their agent in the State with their bills take their safes full of deposits from our people and then suddenly withdraw their agent home leaving a multitude of small deposit re to suffer In all cases of deposit with them of small sums the cost of recovering in London would be greater than the amount to be recovered, so that the company might collect or threaten the swindle at most with impunity If all foreign banking companies are required to deposit the $50,000, our people will be protected from imposition of that sort The amount is not enough to be adopted

Mr HINSDALE favored the amendment on the same ground, and thought it would be no hardship upon bank ers more than upon insurance and express companies If the king companies are forced to deposit their safe business they could not lock upon this requirement as a hardship.

Mr LAMPER Why then are not fire insurance companies required to deposit? I can see no reason why fire insurance companies should be exempt from making deposits and banking and marine insurance companies not It seems to me to be the better policy to encourage the introduction of capital

Mr DOLPH There is a reason for the exemption of fire insurance which does not exist as to the other companies It is not urged by the gentleman from Yamhill It is for the interest of the people to encourage the establishment of numerous fire insurance companies not only because it will prevent monopoly and high rates but because it is unlikely that the whole business of the State will be done by one or two companies An extensive fire in a city might bankrupt them and thus entail loss upon other insurers In such a case the $50 000 deposited would prove to be very little security In the case of marine insurance, the same reason does not hold because the property insured is scattered wide by land and not liable to be visited in the aggregate by fire or storm Thus such companies have not the liability to bankruptcy and there is less reason for encouraging their establishment in numbers

THE AMENDMENT WAS ADOPTED

Mr WATSON from the Committee on claims reported a substitute for S B No 14—for the relief of Stephen Rigdon—which was adopted

Mr JOHNSON from the Judiciary Committee reported back S B No 15—to regulate the organization of the Legislative Assembly—without amendment as directed in bills, its passage

Also S B No 15—to amend the code of civil procedure—with the same recommendation

REPORTS FROM SENATE COMMITTEES

Mr HINSDALE from the Joint Committee to examine into the books and accounts of the State Treasurer, made the following report

The Joint Committee appointed to investigate the books and accounts of the State Treasurer would respectfully submit that after a thorough investigation of the accounts and vouchers, they have been unable to discover any errors or deficiencies in said books and accounts The books of the office are kept in a systematic manner, and at the same time so plainly that your committee found no difficulty in tracing each account and proving its correctness by the vouchers on file in the office. The Treasurer himself is entitled to thanks for the pains taken to so arrange the vouchers that the committee were enabled to examine the account with facility and at the same time thoroughly We find everything in the office correct according to the report.

The soldiers bounty warrants, so far as they have been cancelled have been examined and found correct, but as after being cancelled, they are of no further use, some proper plan should be made for their destruction as they only encumber the small space allotted for the safe keeping of papers in the Treasurer's office and until such legal provision is made for their destruction it is necessary for the Treasurer to hold them as vouchers for his disbursements As the insurance contract and payment of those bonds involve an amount of labor and of risk not properly resting on the duties of the State Treasurer, a fee is offered appropriating a certain per centage upon the amount of the bonds, and giving the Treasurer authority to hire such assistance as may be necessary to fully record an abstract of all the bonds issued in such a full and complete manner as will enable any future committee to fully and satisfactorily investigate the whole matter and also keep a full and complete record of all cancelled bonds so that they can from time to time, as examined by the committee, be destroyed, after comparison with said register, and their correctness certified to.

G S HINSDALE, Clerk
W W. CLEON, Chairman of Committee.

Mr JOHNSON inquired if there was not a bill accompanying the report

Mr HINSDALE. The bill will be reported to the House this morning, as it contains an appropriation

The bill was read first time

Mr DOLPH inquired if the Committee on Elections were ready to report on S B No 11—The registry bill

Mr CARTWRIGHT The Committee is not ready to report having had no meeting since the reference of the bill

AFTERNOON—2 O'CLOCK.

A message was received from the House transmitting H B No 3—To improve the Siuslaw and its Union county The bill was read first time.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE

Mr DOLPH Mr President, I rise to a question of privilege. I am not entirely ignorant of what has been passing in the House this morning. Although I am not fully apprised of the nature of the proceedings I desire to take the present opportunity to make a statement which justice to myself and respect for this honorable body may demand I was present in the House on Saturday last when the resolutions relating to the amendment to the Constitution of the United States were introduced The Speaker ruled the resolutions out of order An appeal was taken from the decision of the chair A certain member from my county voted with the Democracy not to sustain the chair I saw in a moment that the thing was fixed up and we were sold out I sent word to the said Representative from my county by Mr Baldwin the Door keeper of the House that I desired to see him. He did so I gave him my views in an interview I wrote the message read in the House but did not send it until after the vote had been taken and Mr Rosenheim had voted I then sent the slip of paper containing the objection said message to Mr Baldwin by Mr Baldwin I would refer to the fact that the vote had been taken and called his attention to the fact that the vote had been taken The Speaker a number of persons sitting I will in the last of the House a majority in the gallery, actually applauded upon that Mr Rosenheim had voted upon the resolutions before he received the message and before it was sent to him and I state it that the statement made by Mr Rose he in the House this morning—that he had in his hand and carried to the reading desk the message and it is plainly false and he knew the same to be false In regard to the message itself Mr Rosenheim had it at his option to take it as a joke or in a serious I can express that any person desiring to have what is said in the matter should have the statement of Mr Rosenheim as true with all position and free cost with out inquiry as to the facts in the matter In what I did I was guilty of no contempt of the House and if House upon the facts as they exist has any power right to censure me it will have been upon the Mayor of London Whether the communication to Mr Rosenheim is taken as a joke or as earnest the only way in which I would qualify it, had I the opportunity would be to clothe the language in plainer terms I regard the vote of the House under the circumstances as much as I would regard a resolution of censure passed by a Democratic mass meeting if the Democracy had refused to support Mr Rosenheim in the matter I would like taken the path of allegiance he took in favor of the resolution I will only add that the effect given to the resolution by the action of the House adopting the minority report of the committee was that the whole subject was laid upon the table and filed away in the Secretary's office

Mr BROWN in the chair

After some discussion the bill was ordered engrossed upon a number of the amendments thereto and the bill as reported back, with a recommendation that it pass

In the Senate the first three items were all agreed to, and the bill was ordered engrossed for third reading to-morrow

Mr BAILEY introduced S B No — To regulate private incorporations

Mr BURTON introduced a resolution to censure Mr Dolph for an attempt to intimidate Mr Rosenheim with intent to influence his vote

Mr STEARNS moved to refer to a select committee

Mr BAILEY moved to indefinitely postpone, which was agreed to—ayes 11 nays 9

House.

SALEM October 8 1866

House met as usual Prayer by the Rev Mr Leslie of the M P Church The Journal of Saturday was read The Journal states that by the vote on Mr Hunsaker's resolutions relative to the sentence of the Confederate States the resolution was rejected

Mr GARFIELD objected that this portion of the Journal as being incorrect in that the resolution was carried by which the vote was taken I have stated that it was understood at that time that all the absent members should be allowed to record their votes and that the official result should be so stated and till all the votes are recorded

Mr HUMASON objected to the Journal as not correct

Mr UPTON remarked that it was suggested at the time the vote was about to be taken, that if the absentees were permitted to record their votes the final result might be changed from the present one, and that the proper course would be to await the recording of all the votes before declaring what disposition was made of the resolutions That was all that was intended by the gentleman who proposed that the absentees should record their votes to suit himself, and faith in the matter, the final announcement could not have been made with propriety before the vote was completed Suppose the number of the absentees voting against the resolutions was great enough to overbalance the vote in favor of the resolutions and if we before them in order this arrangement it would not alter the result for the resolution would have been already passed and no debate by the chief officer of the House Thus there would be no object for the absentees to record their votes at all.

Mr STARKWEATHER expressed similar views

Mr OLNEY thought it as well to permit the record to stand as it is It was a matter of little consequence, as the number of absentees was not great enough to change the result anyhow

Mr HUMASON moved to dispense with the further reading of the matter and to adjourn at 2 o'clock P M My reason for so doing is that the two members from this county are now absent, and I desire a full house when this action is taken

Mr HERMAN I desire to have my vote recorded against the resolution passed last Saturday and before recording that vote I wish to say a word in explanation of my absence I was appointed on the committee on public grounds and building and in the discharge of official duties I was absent with that committee to the three resolutions were introduced in accordance with my own feelings and also with the wishes of the constituency from Yamhill [Mr Huntsaker] I request that I may be permitted to record my vote when the Polk county members are present

Mr WHITE I move to amend the motion by adding the word to-morrow —o'clock to-morrow

Mr UPTON I submit a point of order that this matter can only be reached by postponing the approval of the minutes

Messrs HALL and DENNIS entered and took their seats

Mr HUMASON I withdraw my motion to postpone for a conversational discussion of some durable length ensued in which Messrs Upton Humason Worth, Helm Nicklin Cox and the Speaker took part

Mr HENDERSHOTT moved that the further consideration of the

The Work of the Disorganizers.

The course which one of the members of the House from this county is pursuing at the Capital, is the natural sequel of his infamous conduct prior to the Senatorial election. We know not why any one should look for honorable behavior, or personal or political integrity in a man who once violated the pledge he gave on his honor to support the person for Senator who might receive the nomination of a caucus in which he himself participated. Whoever will do a thing of this kind may rightfully be supposed to be ready for the perpetration of any act of turpitude. That such a person should afterwards desire that fraud had been committed by the Legislature, and unblushingly own that himself had been a party to it, is not at all surprising. This last act follows naturally upon the heels of the former one. The man who would do the first would not preserve a character for consistency unless he should also do the last. Antolycus would not be himself unless he were consistent in his knavish character.

Though some days have elapsed since a Senator was elected, it is not yet too late to refer to the action of certain members in that contest. We do not intend to let the occasion go entirely by without censuring the conduct of those members who by their factious course violated all party usages, affixed an indelible stain upon their own characters and brought the Union party, at a critical time, into the most imminent danger. We are not expressing dissatisfaction with the final result. We are simply censuring men for not having done what they had promised and what they were in honor bound to do. The course those four men pursued will destroy any party. Concerted action is necessary to the success of political principles. Let the idea once prevail that a mere handful of men may set themselves above the great majority of their party and dictate its policy, and there is an end at once of party discipline and a loss of the results which party discipline alone can secure. Had these factious members refused to vote with the majority, even supposing no caucus had been held, they would have been censurable, but when it is remembered that they themselves participated in the caucus and were pledged, tacitly at least, to abide its decision, their conduct becomes utterly indefensible, and as utterly dishonorable.

It is not for the sake of the past that we refer to these things. It is for the future that we speak. Every member of the Union party ought to join in condemning the factiousness of these renegade Union members of the Legislature. The party generally, is satisfied with the choice that was at last made, but this should not deter any one from pronouncing the conduct of the disorganizers justifiably mean. The party owes no thanks to them that a Union Senator was finally elected. The "bolt" was a diversion in favor of Nesmith. Had the Democrats consented to vote for him, he would have been elected. The first object of the renegades was to elect him, and when they found it impossible, they could then vote for a Union man and claim great credit therefor. These members are not political friends of the Senator elect, for had he been the caucus nominee they would never have voted for him. While we are glad he is elected, we do not give the disorganizers the credit of doing it. The party owes no thanks to them. We have a true Union Senator simply because the Democrats declined to vote for Nesmith. We therefore thank them, and not Messrs. Bayley, Whitt, Rosenheim and Stouffer, for the victory the Union party has achieved.

If men expect the Union party to succeed hereafter, they must emphatically condemn such conduct. They must take care that it do not meet their approval because it has not this time resulted disastrously. If persisted in, next time it will result far differently, and throw the power into the hands of our opponents. Let all such acts be rebuked, both because they are dishonorable and because they are fraught with danger to the party.

The Copperheads in the lower branch of the Legislature have resolved that the Secretary of State be directed to forward a copy of their resolution against the constitutional amendment to the State Department at Washington within ten days. This is decidedly rich. Evidently the Copperheads of the House and their factotum Rosenheim, suppose they are the Legislature of Oregon, and that the Secretary of State is therefore bound to obey their mandates. Most people had supposed that there was another branch of the Legislature called the Senate, and that its concurrence was necessary to make things of this sort valid. Few people were aware that a single House of the Legislature could command the Secretary of State to do a thing of the kind mentioned. We should like to see the law requiring him to obey. Where is it? The resolution which he is "directed" to forward to the State Department does not emanate from the Legislature of Oregon and the idea of commanding the Secretary of the State to transmit it is too ludicrous for anybody but Copperheads to entertain. What will these smart fellows hit upon next?

The Idaho Statesman notices the fact that transportation is exceedingly scarce from Umatilla to Boise, and urges the farmers of the Boise and Payette valleys to take their teams and go to freighting. The Statesman says that the Montana trade took off most of the mule teams, and the United States army operations have absorbed nearly all the teams that were to be had in that part of the country. Freight is now ruling from nine to eleven cents from Umatilla to Boise City, with every prospect of an advance. Great quantities of goods are now lying at Umatilla awaiting transportation.

The Bulletin's New York correspondent says that Postmaster General Randall has agreed to increase the mail service from Salt Lake City to the Dalles to six times per week. It is said that the new arrangement will shortly go into operation. Salt Lake City is to be made a distributing point for the mails, so that all the mail matter for the Northern Pacific coast will be supplied by the new line.

There has been a prize fight at Owyhee between two hard heads named Patsy Foy, and James Dwyer. The disgraceful scene lasted two hours and five minutes. The parties had eighty four "rounds" before the contest was decided. Dwyer was at last, and claims the credit of a great, noble and honorable victory.

The plays of Shakspeare, whose genius was for the whole world, have been translated into Indostance and published at Bombay.

SHOCKING OCCURRENCE IN NEW CALEDONIA.—The Royal steamship Nouvelan, which arrived at Plymouth, England recently with the Paris mail, brought news of a frightful tragedy recently perpetrated in New Caledonia in the Pacific employed as a French convict establishment. His Imperial French Majesty's war steamer Fulton, from New Caledonia, via Hamburg for Brest, then put into Algoa Bay in June 27th, and left on July 6th for Brest reported that while she had been cruising around New Caledonia a boat was despatched into one of the rivers out of sight of the ship for some purpose, and not returning, much anxiety was felt respecting it. The steamer then went up the river in search, and upon a small island discovered remains, which left no doubt that the unfortunate seamen had been captured, and then killed and eaten by the natives. The Fulton then proceeded further inland, as Kanno natives that were taken admitted that all the collective ships crew were correct, that they had come suddenly upon the boat's crew taking them to an island, killed them there by splitting their skulls open with an ax, and had then cooked and eaten them. The officers and crew of the ship, highly exasperated, at these horrible details, proceeded to take summary vengeance upon the savages and killed every one they came in contact with, and set fire to their villages. In addition to those who were burned, no less than 150 were either shot or bayoneted.

DATES TO OCTOBER 8.

Steamer Lost.

The steamer Daniel Webster, from Key West, for the coast of Florida on October 3d. The crew left with all her passengers and crew, while the steamer was sinking. No lives lost.

A fire last night destroyed the 3d and 4th stories of the large building No. 44 Crosby street, occupied by Pratt & Co., oil, varnish and glassware dealers. Loss over $300,000; fully insured. The fire was first discovered by C. to [illegible] further was engaged to the amount of $600,000; fully insured. The building was owned by [illegible]. Further [illegible] at Lynn, Mass., was insured for $600,000.

Catholic Council in Baltimore.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 7.—The Catholic Plenary Council assembled to-day. Present seventeen archbishops, eighty-eight bishops, one hundred and twenty-two mitred abbots, orders, and doctors of divinity, seventy-five ecclesiastics, four monks, and three abbots. The procession was formed at the archbishop's residence and proceeded to the Cathedral. The route was all the way thronged with people, estimated at 40,000. Archbishop Purcell celebrated high mass, and Bishop McCloskey preached the sermon. Bishop Spaulding, delivered an address in Latin.

The Famine in India.

NEW YORK, Oct. 7.—The reports of famine in India are confirmed, especially in the region of Calcutta. The correspondent of the London Times writing from that city under date of the 11th of August, says, the city was being so crowded with people that the municipal commissioners and merchants had organized a relief. On Monday a public meeting of all classes was held in the Town Hall, to raise a subscription. Reports were read giving statistics which, compiled to date, show that at 25 places 11,476 people are daily fed in addition to the sick in hospitals. This number is increasing at the rate of about 200 a day. It may be said that 20,000 persons are now subsisting on charity daily in Calcutta. Reports from Bombay are even more appalling, have the same authority. Thirty of 900 dead bodies being picked up in the streets of Bombay each morning. Half the truth has not been told. The last returns show 7,630 deaths in that one station during the week ending July 31st. If you knobble that number for many who become the food of the jackal and vulture in the lonely jungle or ditch you will not go beyond the sad truth. It is at times that the board of revenue has ceased to report the deaths.

Washington News.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—A Washington special says Commissioner Cooley, of the Indian Bureau, telegraphed his resignation a month ago on account of political differences and that Lewis B. Bigg will not assume the office until Cooley shall have completed his annual report.

Secretary Seward retires temporarily from the State Department to regain his health. Frederick W. Seward is acting Secretary.

Santa Anna was in Washington a few days ago accompanied by the notorious H. Clay Crawford who calls himself General. Santa Anna had an interview with Seward and the President, and is now back again in New York. One report says that at the Cabinet meeting on Thursday Seward made a full exposition of Santa Anna's intentions, and urged the extension of such moral aid as was desired. Another authority denies this, and says the mission of Santa Anna was to convince the administration that the Church party is the only one in Mexico which can establish a firm Government there in case of the downfall of Maximilian; but that the question has not been pressed on the Cabinet.

Commercial Report.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Report says gold has been at a premium of 1 per cent. The loan market continues easy with few transactions. Stocks are irregular. Government stocks are strong and the bank statement shows the following increase of loans four and a half millions, decrease of specie one and a half millions, increase of deposits five millions, decrease of legal tenders two and a half millions.

Flour is 15 and 25c lower. Wheat dull but nominally lower. New white is quoted at $3 20. The decline in cotton has produced a depression in goods and the sooner this decline touches bottom the sooner will trade return. The sluggishness in the wool market continues, there being only a moderate business done.

Burning of St. Patrick's Cathedral.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Additional particulars of the burning of St. Patrick's cathedral show that the loss is not as great as was supposed, not over $7,000—insured for $51 000. All the valuables were removed in time, and the walls were not seriously damaged.

The Herald says Colonel Lopez has sailed for Matamoras with a special instruction from Ortega. One of the objects of the mission is to procure a consignment of arms which have been dispatched from New York and Philadelphia. He is directed to announce the approaching arrival in that city of Gen. Ortega, who will clean out Mexico at the end of this week.

Further from Mexico.

NEW YORK, Oct. 8.—Advices from San Antonio via Galveston say that quite a number of Texans and ex-rebels are at work recruiting for Maximilian's army. There is but little sympathy shown them as it is being fully understood that Santa Anna is pledged to Napoleon to acknowledge the French debt if he succeeds in gaining a footing on Mexican soil. Very few have joined his standard as he is believed to be pecuniarily in the liberal cause. Large quantities of arms and ammunition have reached the Mexican frontier for Juarez's army at Monterey and other places. General Escobedo's forces are now in excellent condition and will soon be fully equipped for a winter campaign. Juarez and staff are at Chihuahua, and are preparing for an early departure for Monterey, where Gen. Escobedo is in command. The latter is sanguine of future success, and awaits the arrival of the President, who has for five years upheld the Liberal cause.

Proclamation for Thanksgiving.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—The President has issued a proclamation recognizing that Thursday, the 29th November be observed as a day of thanksgiving and praise to God for all his mercies and benefits, and also recommending that the people humbly and devoutly implore him to grant to our rulers wisdom which alone can lead the nation into the ways of all good.

Death of Commodore Stockton.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 8.—Commodore Stockton died last night at 10 o'clock P. M. His death has caused a deep feeling of gloom to pervade the entire community. The funeral will take place on Wednesday.

Treasure from Montana.

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—The steamer Tenella passed Leavenworth October 4th from Fort Benton bringing two and a half millions in treasure from Montana.

European News.

PORTLAND POINT, Oct. 8.—The Hibernian passed here with dates to September 25th.

The Lord Mayor of London had determined to entertain the promoters and layers of the Atlantic cable at a grand banquet at the Mansion House early in December.

The infant daughter of Victor Hugo died of inflammation of the throat, at Norwood, October 26th.

Sutherwaite's circular of Sept 25th, says: There has not been so much activity during the past week in American securities.

The Morning Post's city article says advices from Paris state that frequent interviews have taken place between the representatives of various powers and the French foreign office relative to eastern affairs, but more especially between the French Foreign Minister and the representatives of England and Russia.

Official accounts from Candia, state that the news of the defeat of the Egyptian troops by the Candians was inaccurate. The Egyptians not expecting the commencement of hostilities, were temporarily separated from the works. Immediately on the arrival, however of Ishmaeel Pacha, they succeeded in reuniting the Egyptian troops with the works, with a loss of only 150 men.

The Paris Monitery says: In Candia blood has been shed, but the insurrection has not progressed. The arrival of the Turkish commander appears to have produced a favorable impression that all hopes have not been abandoned of the success of the mission with which he is invested. Syria has sent representatives to the Porte to insist on the evacuation of forts Kleanpiki and Hillebeli, near Dresse. A French iron-clad has arrived at Barrits, and was received by the Emperor.

The inundations in France continued and it was feared the waters had not reached their full hight. Telegraphic communication between Central and Southern France was extremely difficult.

A party of men, seven hundred strong, are now exploring the country for gold about the head waters of Snake river.

THE MORNING DEW-DROP.—These splendid RUN PEARLS are now at ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL'S GALLERY, 89 First street, the other day, are as fresh and rosy as the surface of a dew-drop in the rays of the morning sunlight. All of the various styles of PICTURES known to the art are procurable at any time from this establishment.

CORRECT PRICES.—The steamer Senator brought last evening from Oregon City the following freight: Three horse merchandise, 1 coop of chickens, 4 bales woolen goods, 24 strands barop, 54 sheep skins, 175 sacks feed, 60 sacks flour, and three specimens of iron from the Oregon Iron Works. One of the specimens has been manufactured into a bar. The iron is apparently of excellent quality. Some specimens of Oregon iron that we have seen were pronounced by competent judges to be fully equal to Norway or Swedish. Although as yet there has been no test made public on the subject, it will not have been long before it will be remembered that at the State Fair some years ago, there was on exhibition a premium set of horse shoes made from Oregon iron manufactured by Mr. Olds. Although the cost of working the ore was necessarily very great, the iron was pronounced by those who worked it to be of superior quality.

THE PIONEERS.—The Pioneers met on their grounds in East Portland last evening for practice. The ball was in fine order, and the game was a very closely contested one. The Club shows much improvement and if they but keep themselves well in practice will be hard to beat. The boys are all doing their best for the match game to be played at Oregon City on Saturday next. The Clackamas Club are making preparations to receive the Pioneers in style. The steamer Senator has been engaged to convey the Pioneers from the city on the Senator here on Saturday morning at 8 o'clock. Arriving at Oregon City they will be met at the boat by the Clackamas Club and Oregon City Brass Band, and escorted to the hotel where a fine breakfast has been ordered for the company. After breakfast the clubs will proceed to the field and the match will be played. The Field at Oregon City is a fine one and we anticipate the game will be a fine one.

OREGON CITY FACTORY.—The Oregon City Woolen Mills have already set up a portion of their new machinery. The mill is being rapidly received. On last Monday 39 huge bales of 200 pounds each were received. This looks encouraging, as the fall clip has been scarcely noticed before the Oregon wool market. 11,000 pounds of fall wool is a very good beginning, and but few years will elapse before this clip will have assumed proportions great enough to attract the attention of traders.

THE PAPER MILL.—We learn that the new paper mill at Oregon City is nearly completed. The floom has been finally set in place. The main hall to be used by the dancers on the occasion of the dedication ball given by the Oregon City Brass Band, on the evening of the 11th inst., is 80 feet long by 40 feet wide. Immediately after the ball the floor will be set up, and but a short time will elapse before we will see paper of their manufacture in the market.

THREE FIFTY.—We see upon the wharf of the O. S. N. Company a beautiful jumper of eastern manufacture in waiting for Boise. Its fine appearance and cosy cushions begin to mind the winter scenes when icy chains are laid a-bed, rivers and rills, when earth wears a snowy mantle, and out upon the lesten road the sleighs go flashing by filled with their laughing loads. Everything goes and comes but. Trotting horses, robes, furs, bells and countenance will be in high premium.

LOST.—We learn that a man named Johnson was arrested in Oregon City on Sunday evening last. He had become himself in a very boisterous and disorderly manner by threatening his neighbors, saying that he would whip the whole crowd, and by swearing his case was heard before Justice Meldrum, and defendant held to keep the peace, in the sum of $200 bonds.

THE REV. Mr. Jacob Vogelsleerff, of San Francisco, will address the citizens of this city this evening, at 7 o'clock, on the order of I. O. B. B. The order has never appeared but a short time, and all will be pleased to hear more of its objects. The address will be delivered at the Jewish Synagogue, on Third street.

THE STEAMER.—The O. S. N. Co.'s steamer brought on last trip a very large number of passengers among them. We noticed a number of emigrant families with their wives and teams, and the stock necessary to make their future home out in "woody Oregon."

POLICE NEWS.—In Police Court Monday one John Sullivan had been arrested for drunkenness. We wish to render to whether that it was not John P. Walker, an orderly citizen of this city.

RACE.—A race comes off to-day on the River-side track. Fly-by-night against Nellie, best three in five, for $200 a side, $250 forfeit; race to come off at 2 o'clock P. M.

POLICE COURT.—In police court yesterday, Henry Hilton was fined with being drunk and disorderly conduct on Alder street, was fined $5 and costs.

BONDED WAREHOUSE.—We learn that a brick addition is being made to the distillery to be used as a bonded warehouse.

CANNED GOODS.—Remember that "To canned goods can be added stamps." The telegram published last week was right, and should have read as above.

LECTURE.—The genial conversationist and stentorian voiced irrepressible A. B. Richardson, may be seen and heard at his auction rooms this day at 10 A. M.

AN OPERATION.—Dr. J. S. Gilbert, of this city, assisted by Dr. Leighton, performed on the 23d of last month a surgical operation upon a lady aged 36 years, by removing a large tumor from the interior organs of the uterus. The lady has since rapidly recovered and is now able to be about. Great credit is due to the Doctor.

A.—In the Police reports a few days ago mention was made of a difficulty in the family of "J. Bloom." As the impression has spread abroad that the trouble was in the family of Jacob Bloom, of the firm of Bloom & Moskwitz, we owe them the justice of saying that his is not the family referred to, as there is another family of the same name.

ALL FOR LOVE.—The Walla Walla Statesman relates how a man in that town got himself in an inextricable difficulty, "all for love."

On Tuesday last, Messrs. Brown Brothers & Co. discovered that their porter, Charles Hubart, had been perpetrating a series of robberies, which had attended over several months. It seems that the porter had made the acquaintance of a family named Shattuck, and conceiving an affection for one of the girls of the family, a grass widow, sought to propitiate his suit by making her all manner of presents. The other members of the family also came in for a share of his good offices, and on all of them he lavished presents in the most profusion. This liberality extended not only to articles of ornament, but to those of a more practical character, and included not only the — for the ladies, and shoes and clothing for the children, but full supplies of groceries, canned fruits, oysters, and in fact every article conducive to the enjoyment of life. His plan was to visit until the store was closed at night; when he would remain behind, and pass out at a rear door with the articles were required to the old man Shattuck, who carried them off. When discovered, after demurring for a time, he made a full confession, and stated the manner of his operations. In his trunk was found a lot of tea and a box of cigars that had been stolen from the store, and on repairing to Shattuck's house a stock of goods sufficient to start a respectable store was found. Dress goods in great variety, sewing silk by the pound, crushed sugar by the sack, an assortment of ladies' and children's shoes, sacks of flour, packages of tea, and in fact duplicates of nearly every article to be found in the store. His excuse was that the Shattucks were poor, and being friends of his, he desired to relieve them. The articles found in the house were taken in custody by Sheriff Seitel, and will be held as evidence against the thief when his case comes up for trial at the October term of the District Court. The Shattucks were arrested on the charge of receiving stolen goods, but inasmuch as the Messrs. Brown declined to prosecute they were discharged. The dishonest porter is now in jail, and already begins to realize that "the way of the transgressor is hard." The opinion is that the Shattucks got him into all his trouble, and that had it not been for them he never would have abused the confidence of his employers. Charley's misfortune was to fall in love, and under the influence of the rosy god he perpetrated a series of robberies that will send him to a prison cell for years to come.

The best Hair Dressing extant, and a perfect Hair Restorer is the "Martha Washington." Buy it.

Notice.

In the local columns of the Daily Herald and Oregonian, this morning after the last monthly meeting of Protection Engine Co. No. 4, and in the Herald of Sunday and again in the Oregonian of Monday, we noticed items to the effect that this Company had unanimously nominated Mr. A. B. Hallock for Chief Engineer of the Portland Fire Department. Now, we the undersigned and others, members of No. 4, do hereby contradict this assertion. The motion to nominate Mr. Hallock was carried by a very small majority of the members present at the meeting and not by the full Company as represented. We publish this to let the firemen and citizens know that we don't allow any persons to pledge our votes to any candidate without our consent or knowledge.

Dr. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters should be in the possession of everybody in the mining regions. As a preventive of various dangerous diseases to which the gold seeker is liable, it has no superior. While it is quite palatable even as a beverage, it is speedy and powerful in its effects upon the system. In all cases of Diarrhœa, Dysentery, and the pervading fevers consequent upon exposure, the bitters will be found invaluable as a corrective. No man should enter upon the exposed life of a miner without being provided with Hostetter's preventive of stomach disease, nor should any of those who are now engaged in the occupation fail to have recourse to the Bitters. Sold by all druggists and dealers everywhere. sep20 HODGE & CALEF, 97 Front St.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
READ AND REFLECT.
Make sure of HEALTH. "But how?" you ask; We answer, 'tis an easy task,
Strengthen the STOMACH, and sustain The NERVES, the acknowledged chain.
The LIVER keep in active play
And regulate, from day to day.
Each organ aid, on Nature's plan,
Brace and refresh the WHOLE MAN,
And like a watch that's kept in chime
By constant care, with railroad time,
The system's tone and strength renew,
And thereby cheer the spirits, too.
"How can this be done?" you enquire; "can this be done?
This Victory o'er Disease to win?"
"HOSTETTER'S BITTERS," we reply.
IN HEALTH'S SUPREME PROTECTION—YES!
As a means of regenerating the disordered and enfeebled system, regulating every function of the internal organs, reviving the depressed spirits, invigorating the constitution, and prolonging life, no medicinal preparation, either of the past or the present time, has been so completely and universally successful as
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
Against the vapors foul prepare,
That fever-taint the heavy air.
Drink not unmixed the water found
In pastures, woods or marshy ground.
If sedentary toil you ply,
Nature gets small airing—or die—
For when debarred from exercise
For artificial aid she cries.
Medicine's grand purpose and intent
Is threatened evil to prevent:
And if you'd be relieved or spared
From ills that crush the unprepared,
Hostetter's Bitters use—for note
They are the surest ANTIDOTE
To set at defiance the miasma of unhealthy soils, the poison of unwholesome water, the effluvia of crowded work-rooms and factories, and the baneful influence of sedentary employments, it is only necessary to be forearmed with
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS
Dyspepsia's pangs, that rack and grind
The body, and depress the mind:
Agues, that as they go and come,
Make life a constant martyrdom;
Colics and dysentiric pains,
'Neath which the strong man's vigor wanes;
Bilious complaints, those tedious ills,
No'er conquered yet by drastic pills;
Dread diarrhœa that cannot be
Cured by destructive mercury;
Slow constitutional decay
That brings Death nearer, day by day;
Nervous prostration, mental gloom—
Heralds of madness in the tomb;
For these—though internal nostrums fail—
Means of Relief at last we hail,
HOSTETTER'S BITTERS—medicine sure,
Not to prevent, alone, but cure.
In dyspepsia, fever and ague, bilious complaints, constitutional and nervous debility, constipation, tic-doloureux, spasms, and in all complaints of Man or Woman, proceeding from casual or inherent weakness of the body, the one great remedy and restorative is
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
To warriors on the field of battle,
From Polar shore to Tropic strand;
To households lone, in regions new,
And dwellers in great cities, too;
To soldiers in camp, fort and field;
Who need against disease a shield;
To miners, California bound,
And tillers of wet, marshy ground;
To feeble wives of fragile mold,
To young and middle-aged, and old;
To those in health, who would enjoy
Heaven's best gifts without alloy;
To all the strugglers, weak and pale,
Who droop, yet know not what they ail,
Hostetter's Bitters are present
As Health's most potent element.
If there is any value in public opinion, or any weight in medical testimony, this very best and safest Tonic, Corrective and Alterative now before the world is
HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS.
Sold by respectable druggists in all parts of the world.

My Fare—A Cabman's Story

Don't you mind me, sir, if I take a cup of coffee and a cigar while I am not a working man, because I am not going to run away with the idea that because I go a morning, half an hour later in the evening, ready cleaned for work, and jumps up and drives off as if I did not work as any man, because I like and I need short hours for it, was Sunday and week days, till the missus and me had our heads together and said it would take five six days' work a week at cabbing, we'd try some other line, so now I'm only six days mad—I'm a cabman, cab, No. 1, and I'm used to carry two persons.

Now, most of our fares is kind and speakers for me. I takes my money in to the governor regular, and tells him that if I could get I have a decent horse I wouldn't drive, and I'm not a bit sharp hunting work for him ten years.

Take yesterday, me, Steve Williams, he says, and I took it, and drives Kangaroo, the wall-eyed horse with a rat-tail.

I had a cull one day off the stand by the Fondling and had to go into New Ormond street, close by, and I takes up an old widow lady and her daughter, as beautiful a girl of seventeen or eighteen as ever I set my eyes on, but so weak I had to get and help her down to the cab, when she thanked me so sweetly I couldn't help looking again and again, for it was a thing I wasn't used to.

"Drive out towards the country, cabman, the nearest way says the old lady, and when we want to turn back, I'll speak."

Poor girl says I, she's an invalid. She's just such a one as my Fan would have been if she'd lived, and I says this to myself as I gets quite my hoss feeling quite soft, for though I know my gal wouldn't have been handsome, what did that matter? I didn't like to lose her.

"Let's see, I says again, I she wants fresh air. We'll go up the hill and through Hampstead," and I touched Kangaroo on the flank, and away he goes, and I picks out the nicest bits I could and when I comes across a pretty bit of view I pulls up, and pretends as there's a strap wanted tightening, or a hoof picking, or a fresh knot at the end of the whip and so on. Then I goes pretty quickly along the streety bits, and walks very slowly among the green lanes, and so we goes on for a good hour, when the old lady pushes the lid open with her parasol, and tells me to turn back.

"All right, mum," I says, and takes 'em back another way, allers following the same plan and at last pulls up at the house where I supposed they were lodgers, for that's a rare place for lodgings about here.

I has the young lady leaning on my arm when she gets out, when she was at the door she says "Thank you, sir," again, so sweetly and sadly it almost upset me. But the old lady directly after asks me for the fare, and I tells her, and she gives me sixpence too much, and though I wanted to pocket it, I wouldn't, but hands it back.

"Thank you, cabman," she says, "that's for being so very kind and attentive to my poor child."

"God bless her, mum," says I, "don't want paying for that."

Then she smiles quite pleasant, and asks me if it would be worth my while to call the next afternoon if it was fine, and I says it would, and next day, just in the same way, I goes right off past Primrose Hill, and, seeing what they wanted was the fresh air, I makes the best of my way right out, and there, when we were amongst the green trees, Kangaroo and me takes it easy, and just saunters along. Going up the hill I walks by his head, and picks at the hedges, while them two, seeing as I took no notice o' 'em, got to talking no notice o' me. I mean, you know, treated me as if we was old friends, and asked me questions about the different places we passed, and soon.

Bimeby I drives 'em back, and the old lady again wanted to give something extra, for what she called my kind consideration; but, "No, Stevey," I says to myself, "if you can't do a bit of kindness without being paid for it, you'd better put up shutters, and take some other trade." So I wouldn't have it, and the old lady thought I was offended, but I laughed, and told as the young lady had paid me, and so she had with one of her smiles, and I said I'd be there again next day if it was fine.

And so I was, and so went on, day after day, and week after week, and I could see that though the sight of the country and the fresh air brightened the poor girl up a bit, yet she was getting weaker and weaker, so that at last, I half carried her to the cab and back again after the ride. One day, while I was waiting, the servant tells me that they wouldn't stay in town only on account of a great doctor, as they went to see at first, but who came to see them now; and last of all, when I went to the house, I used always to be on a fidget, for fear the poor girl would be too ill to come out. But no, month after month she kept on, and when I held her she used to smile sweetly and talk so about the trouble she gave me, that one day, feeling a bit low, I turned quite silly, and happening to look at her mother, standing there with tears in her eyes, I had to hurry in and get up on to my seat as quick as I could, to keep from breaking down myself.

Poor girl I always so loving and kind to all about her—always thanking one so sweetly and looking all the while so much like what one would think an angel would look, it did seem so pitiful to see her get lighter and lighter, week by week—so feeble that at last I used to go up stairs to fetch her, and always carried her down like a child.

Then she used to laugh and say, "Don't let me fall, Steven"—for they got to call me by my name, and to know the missus by her coming in to help a bit, for the old lady asked me to recommend 'em an honest woman, and I knowed none honester than my wife. And so it was with everybody—it didn't matter who it was—they all loved that poor girl, and I've had the wife come home and sat and talk about her, and Fanny as died, till she's been upset, she's cried so terribly.

Autumn come in werry wet and cold, and an end to my jobs there. Winter was very severe, but I kep' on hearing from the missus how the poor girl was sometimes better, sometimes worse—and the missus always shook her head werry sadly when she talked about her.

January and February went by terribly cold, and then March came in quite warm and fine, so that things got so forrard you could buy radishes wonderfully cheap in April, and one night the wife tells me that if it was as fine the next day as it had been, I was to call and take the old lady and her daughter out.

Next day was splendid. It was as fine a spring day as ever I did see, and I sticks a daffy-downdilly in on each side of Kangaroo's head, and spends twopence in a couple o' bunches o' wilets, and pins 'em on the side where the poor girl used to sit, puts a clean sheet on the boots, and then drives to the place with the top lid open, so as to sweeten the inside, because swells had been smoking there that morning.

"Just run yer sponge and leather over the apron a bit, Buddy," I says to our waterman afore I left the stand.

"Got a wedding on?" he says, seeing how per tickler I was.

"There, look alive!" I says, quite snappish, for I didn't feel in a humor to joke, and then when I'd got all as I thought right, I drives up, keeping the lid open as I said afore.

When I draws up, I pats the nose-bag on the old horse, for him to amuse himself with, and so as I could leave, for he wouldn't stir an inch with that bag on to please all the plencemen in London. Then I rings, and waits, and at last gets my orders to go and help the young lady down.

I takes off my hat, wipes my shoes well, and goes up, and there she was waiting, and smiled so pleasantly again, and held out her hand to me as though I'd been a friend instead of a rough, weather-battered street cabman. And do you know what I did, as I went in there, with my eyes all dim at seeing her so changed? Why, I felt as if I ought to do it, and I knelt down and took her beautiful white hand in mine, and kissed it, and left a big tear on it, for something seemed to say so plainly that she'd soon be where I hoped my own poor girl was, whom I always say we lost, but my wife says, "No, not lost, for she is ours still."

She was so light now that I carried her down in a minute, and when she was in the cab and saw the wilets, she took 'em down and held 'em in her hand nodded and smiled at me, as though she thanked me for them.

"Go the same way as you went the first time, Steven," she said.

And I pushed over all the quieter bits, and took her out beyond Hampstead, and there in the greenest and prettiest spot I could find, I pulls up and sits there listening to the soft whispers of her voice and feeling, somehow, that it was for the last time.

After a bit I goes gently on again, all more and more towards the country, where the hedges were turning so beautiful and green and all looked so bright and gay.

Bimeby I stops again, for there was a pretty view, and you could see miles away. Of course, I didn't look at them if I could help it, for the real secret of people enjoying a ride is being with a driver who seems no more to care than the horse—a man you see who knows his place. But I couldn't help just stealing one or two looks at the inside where the poor girl lay back in the corner looking out at the springtime and holding them two bunches of wilets of mine to her face. I was walking backwards and forwards then, patting the horse and stroking the harness when I just ex'cted the old lady's eye, and saw she look ed rather frightened and she leans over and calls her by name quickly, but the poor girl did not move—only stared straight out at the blue sky, and smiled so softly and sweetly.

I didn't want no telling what to do for I was in myself a little bit frightened, for I thought maybe I could count too, and was be sent to jail for it, till I came up to the doctor's, and I got the bell and had him up in the cab in no time, and then he rode on the front board of the cab in front of the apron with the bald-headed man, and he whispered to drive back like fury and I did.

* * *

The old lady has lodged with several for I took a better place on purpose as I knew as always attends on her. She's very fond of living with my wife and out their two grandchildren have gone before, but I often hears of her driving over the old spots, and never a word is said about such things, but in a certain natural sad way Sarah told me as the old lady was not the same from the poor girl's and sent me a note to have a chat in a morning.

Of course I couldn't wear it every day, but there was a bit o' vanity crept on my old 'un, but not such a worry long time ago, and I never buy wilets now for as they lie in the bottom of my cab, and sprinkled with the drops of the water they seem to me to have tears in 'em and makes me feel sad and upset, for they start old memories afresh.

The Dunderberg—Experimental Trip of the Thunder Mountain

[From the New York World (septer ber 7th)]

The first experimental trip of the mammoth armored ram, the Dunderberg, literally the Thunder Mountain, occurred yesterday, and in its results was as thorough a success as were the interests that hung upon its issue of grand and grave importance. At five o'clock the starting hour, our reporter noticed on board Wm H Webb, the contractor and constructor Mesubler the foreman in chief of Webb's yard, Reach builder of the engines, Erastus W Smith consulting constructive engineer, and Thomas Mann, his assistant, with Captain James Comstock, late of the Baltic, Collin's line in command of the Dunderberg, which was manned by thirty seamen and run by one hundred and ten firemen, assistant engineers, etc., the full complement directed by John Callahan, the active engineer. The party was limited to those enumerated as the purpose of this trip was purely scientific and the inability of accommodating all the friends of the builders would have proved as complete as the selection of a favored few would have been invidious, so only the parties directly concerned were allowed to go.

STEAMING OUT FROM THE DOCK.

Early as was the hour, the spacious dock at the foot of Sixth street was thickly sprinkled with spectators, mostly shipwrights, and as the stentorian voice of Captain Comstock gave the order "Let all go" motion was first imparted to the mammoth mass that line known no other except the sideway for many months, and the Dunderberg steamed out into the waters over which she is to hold martial empire, straight as an dart, steady as over ship that floated and big as colossus. Her egress was greeted with mighty cheers, whose echos floated over the stately iron craft were taken up by the voyagers and sent back with vocal acclaim, until the air rang and lungs could barrah no longer.

The appearance of the Thunder Mountain is not the distant, rakish, saucy look that is fettered from keel to truck on every clipper but lying low in the waters she spreads out into massivity and proceeds with almost conscious and easily visible majesty of motion, being at once light and her underwating equips breathing a defiance and warning from her short but immensely wide smoke stack and advancing with that wonderful ram prow that extends fifty feet over and under the surface able to split and sink all the wooden walls man has launched since Father Noah's floating menagerie went into dry dock on Ararat.

Her ochre red hue of grimly prolonged outline contrasts with the black baptism of smoke that belches forth as her powerful machinery progresses and when the mighty ordnance pour immense salute lips through the gaping port holes, the effect will be still vaster and more impressing. All were delighted with the beautiful obedience and working of the ram. As only to reduce the friction of the engines was the purpose of the trip and to familiarize the men with their management, but the moderate pressure of sixteen pounds of steam was allowed. This secured forty revolutions of the enormous screw wheels per minute, and shot the symmetrical mass along at an hourly rate of ten knots. So devoid of the least tendency to roll or even to undulate was the vessel, that but for the breathing of the gigantic steam lungs and the recession of outside objects the motion would have been hardly perceptible. Every one on board was permeated with enthusiasm from the cabin boy to Commodore, congratulation and compliment interspersed between all, and a proposition to run into and pulverize Governor's Island failed by only one vote as did also a motion to run off Sandy Hook from main Jersey, and as soon a quarantine to the Empire State.

DIARY OF THE EXPEDITION.

Embarked from Sixth street dock at 5 45 A M. Steamed directly for Brooklyn Navy Yard where were taken on board the following officers of the Government, ordered to superintend the working of the ram: Post Captains Ringold and Ransom, and Engineers Danby and Purse, of the United States navy. Rear Admiral Gregory was detained by sickness. After steaming at will around the harbor as far as Christopher and Canal streets, the ram was headed for the Narrows, by way of Buttermilk channel, first passing and saluting the Persian of her dock at Jersey City. The Narrows were reached at 8 45 A M, and Forts Lafayette and Richmond dipped ensigns to the Dunderberg, the recognition being returned amid the tremendous cheers of crew and garrison, the latter hung in line for inspection.

At 9 o'clock all sat down to a hearty breakfast, with an appetite whetted by salubrious air and exhilaration. Hardly had the joint merits of the repast and the vessel been well discussed before the lighthship was reached and open ocean gained. Here, at 15, the whole party came on deck to witness the test evolutions of the ram, which was turned repeatedly, forty-one times in all, in a space hardly more than half her total length, 350 feet 4 inches, each complete revolution being made in an average time of three minutes and thirty seconds, by our reporter's watch, and not the least dipping or lateral lurching being noticeable to the acutest observation. As a prophecy and exhibition of thoroughly and faithly with which, in case of conflict, the nautical annihilator could "change her base," either to vary the direction of her discharges or to bisect her opponent, this execution was pronounced unapproachable on the part of anything else that now carries cannon, by the unanimous verdict of the officials on board.

During the day the Dunderberg was steamed around the Lower Bay, and three up the North river as far as Canal street. The news of her departure had spread through the city and the dock was black with excited thousands, who cheered lustily her every appearance. The men of war ships and merchantmen of all nations in the harbor were crowded, what with their crews and the adventurous many that had boarded their decks for observation from the two cities and from the mosquito marshes of the State of Camden and Amboy. Glasses innumerable were leveled, hosts of flags fluttered welcome, deep throated buzzes everywhere ribboned the air. The progress of the Dunderberg was as complete an ovation as it was a vindication of the expenditure, labor and design bestowed upon her structure.

At 6½ o'clock the Dunderberg steamed back without accident to her dock, taking advantage of the then prevailing high water to accommodate her large draft of twenty one feet, and the party disembarked. One or two other similar short trips are projected before the decisive final trip, to extend through five days, is to occur. During this excursion the Dunderberg developed her full power of steam pressure, and one half the number of mounted possible maximum revolutions of the screw wheel.

The amount of pressure of steam was sixteen pounds to the square inch, the number of revolutions was forty to the minute the speed ten knots an hour. The doubles of these rates obviously cypher themselves, and the degree of power they express would exceed credibility did not science and figures demonstrate them beyond cavil. In this irresistibility add invulnerability and impregnability, and the Dunderberg as a fact and a possibility may be comprehended.

CURIOUS STORY ABOUT COLONEL DAHLGREN'S BODY.—The relatives and friends of the late Col Dahlgren, who fell on his way through King William county after his memorable raid on the city have been grossly deluded by having palmed off upon them a fictitious body in lieu of that of the deceased Colonel. I can state positively that the body given to the relatives was not the genuine one and the parties who secured it had not the slightest idea where the Colonel's remains were interred. The fact was known but to two persons, and I can assure you that neither of these furnished any information as to the where abouts. They are still where they were deposited and any impression to the contrary is the merest delusion. The man Martin Meredith Lipscomb who gave to the friends of Colonel Dahlgren what he represented as the genuine body had no earthly knowledge directly or indirectly of the place of its interment. What gave color to the idea of his having full information upon the subject was the fact of his having a contract for the burial of deceased Federal prisoners many of whom he often boasted of having buried alive. The body given to Colonel Dahlgren's friends was exhumed from Oakwood Cemetery and thence carried to the farm of a German where it was reinterred and suffered to remain until the close of the war.

The Duke of Caledonia was a visitor in Oakland County. Where he had been entertained from motives of hospitality, he gave to the two who performed the burial service and their associates who would willingly suffer death for their country, a life time injunction of secrecy. Impelled by the strictest secrecy observed in the interment of the body a secret carried to the grave of confidence as in the choice of men who could form the task of interment, and the promise of any information regarding it being in the possession of Captain Lipscomb. Nativity as to the fronts of burying objects a respect to the interment and the promise performing the service, but parties were chosen for the purpose who may prefer of reward could tell more than no hope of future favor conciliate. In consideration of over nine months, it is not within the range of probability that upon like Martin Meredith Lipscomb and a German named Lehman whose fidelity to the relic cause was always suspected would be afforded an opportunity of knowing the whereabouts of Colonel Dahlgren's body. Even so willing and pliant credulity could hardly be brought to yield to such an absurdity.—Cor. N. Y. Herald.

The Duke of Antwerp, wishing to give a concert to him, Leopold II, who was about to visit that place for the first time since the accession determined to engage two celebrated Parisian singers, Mlle Nilsson and M Faure. The lady demanded 1,600 and the gentleman 1,200 for singing two or three each, so that the corporation of Antwerp has been obliged to renounce its intention.

A lot of land and buildings in St Paul, Minnesota belonging to J N Maffit, some color of the rebel pirate Florida, was lately confiscated by the United States Circuit Court.

SOMETHING NEW!

THE NEW LIGHT!
DANFORD'S
Atmospheric Coal Oil Gas Lamp!

ARTIFICIAL LIGHT OF SOME SORT IS A UNIversal necessity. A Safe Cheap and Brilliant one is a Luxury—a luxury only enjoyed heretofore by those who live in large cities where Gas is used. Years of study and much capital have been exhausted in experiments to produce a lamp wherein the ordinary Kerosene or Coal Oil could be used, and not a chimney, and without unpleasant odor while in use. That fruitful source of expense, trouble and annoyance, the chimney, is in DANFORD'S COAL OIL GAS LAMP avoided. It is the most perfect Lamp and will entirely supersede all other Coal Oil Lamps. It is the cheapest artificial light that can be used, yielding the light of an ordinary six foot Gas Burner for less than one cent per hour, and without the quantity of light of an ordinary Chimney Lamp, for one third the cost. It will burn when turned down to a taper light ten hours for a cent, is free from smoke, can be carried from room to room and the wind will not blow it out. These LAMPS will be on exhibition and for sale at the Music and Art Gallery of Strahan & Dufresne, corner of Morrison and Second streets.
